Dearest son,

We, your parents, are writing this letter to implore you to clear the mess that has become your bedroom. Ordinarily, this would not have become such an issue but a series of recent events have led us to this point.

Firstly, we are becoming increasingly concerned for the welfare of your carpet. Rumours are circulating that it's actually left your room and has travelled to a different house. Until you remove the heaps of dirty clothes and disused toys – revealing the floor below – we will be unable to confirm or deny these claims.

Secondly, we are worried about the level of danger that your room currently presents. Imagine being able to walk from the door to your bed without stubbing your toe or having to stretch to find a safe foothold. You may be thinking that nobody noticed when you stumbled over that toy car last week but we saw the way that your arms waved around as you tried to regain your footing. Surely, you don't want to risk that level of danger every time you need to retrieve something from your bookcase.

Luckily, we have an easy solution: tidying. Simply, place your dirty clothes in the provided bag and put your toys back in the box. Not sure which box to use? We suggest the one that says 'TOYS' on the top. Not only is it within easy reach but it's also spacious enough to hold every one of the toys currently living on your bedroom floor. I think you'll find that this quick, simple and easily deployed method will yield almost immediate results.

Please, for the safety of all who live here, tidy your room.

Yours sincerely,

Your concerned parents

Dearest parents,

Thank you for your letter of concern. While you have made some good points, I would like to clarify a few things.

Firstly, my carpet is safe: there is no need to be concerned for its welfare. If my carpet had decided to travel to a different house, don't you think that at least one of us would have noticed? For years, it has enjoyed sitting beneath my various possessions and I see no reason for that suddenly changing.

Secondly, I would like to draw your attention to the conversation that we had last week. In this conversation, you suggested that I step away from my computer and 'stretch my legs'. However, it now seems as though you are against me stretching my legs for a safe foothold! In my opinion, the daily exercise and challenge that navigating my bedroom floor presents is ideal. In short, I have a makeshift gym in my own bedroom and I don't understand why you would want me to dismantle it.

Lastly, you mentioned my small stumble last week. I know you saw; you're not as good at muffling your laughter as you might think. However, I'm disappointed that you didn't notice the soft pile of clothes that I landed on – these undoubtedly shielded me from harm! Surely, you wouldn't want me to put them in a basket therefore leaving myself with no safe landing in the future.

In conclusion, I will not be tidying my bedroom for the multiple reasons mentioned above. I'm sure that you (my parents, who value my safety above all else) will agree.

Yours sincerely,

Igor

Igor,

Thank you for your recent reply regarding the state of your bedroom and how you feel as though it should not be cleaned.

As your parents, who value your safety above all else, we must now insist that the room is tidied. It has gone beyond 'dangerous' and is now in the realm of 'perilous'. Last night, I scarcely managed to navigate my way back through the door after your bedtime story.

Next week, your grandmother will be visiting. I assume that you don't wish to subject her to the sights (and smells) of Sock Mountain.

Please, for the safety of everyone, do what's right and tidy your room.

Yours sincerely,

Your slightly fed up parents
